“So, You Are Wondering If Your Child Needs An Evaluation”

Presented by: Susan Burnett, PhD

Are you hesitant to ask your school district to evaluate your child for attention issues and learning disabilities? It is a hard decision for some parents. Some may worry that their child will be labeled or treated differently. Others may wonder if their child’s challenges are serious enough for an evaluation. Have you asked your school district for an evaluation and been told no? Come learn why you should get an evaluation and how to get an evaluation that helps your child be more successful.

Dr. Burnett holds master degrees in Marriage and Family therapy and Clinical/Community Psychology and a doctorate degree in Clinical Psychology, which gives her the knowledge and expertise in the interpretation of Psychoeducational evaluations in determining the child’s individual educational needs. She has completed the Strategic Negotiation Skills training by Pepperdine University School of Law in the area of Dispute Resolution. She has also served as a member of the Office of Administrative Hearing Advisory Committee. Dr. Burnett has been working as a special education consultant since 1998. She is the founder of Consultants and Advocates for Special Education. This presentation will have plenty of time for Q&A.
